Bio

Julie Miguel is known nationally as a being a fierce competitor in the inaugural season of CTV's MasterChef Canada and CBC's Fridge Wars. She is also a Culinary Expert on Cityline! The focus of her blog, Daily Tiramisu, is to empower home cooks to be fearless in the kitchen and she does this by taking traditionally difficult recipes and making them easier to execute.

Cooking is something that Julie has always been fiercely passionate about. She is a home cook with a lot of real life experience who has trained with many well-known chefs.

As a mother of two she knows the importance of healthy, fun and simple recipes!

When she's not developing recipes for her clients, Julie has taken a leadership role in other parts of the industry. She has been part of the Program Advisory Council at Centennial College where she acted as an industry advisor for their Food Media program. She was also the Blog Award Chair for the Taste Canada Awards, Canada's highest honour for food and beverage writing, where she administered the Blog Award.
